

Accessibility Statement

I am dedicated to ensuring that this website is accessible to all individuals, including those with disabilities. I strive to provide an inclusive online experience for everyone and am continuously working to enhance the accessibility and usability of this website.

What is web accessibility?

Web accessibility refers to the inclusive practice of ensuring that people with disabilities can perceive, understand, navigate, and interact with the web. It involves making web content and functionality accessible to everyone, regardless of their abilities or impairments.

Efforts towards accessibility

Jenny Cameron Speech and Language Therapy is committed to making this site jennycameron.co.uk accessible to individuals with disabilities.

I have taken steps to align this website with the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.2 and strive to achieve a level of accessibility that meets AAA standards. This website is designed to be compatible with assistive technologies, such as screen readers and keyboard navigation. To achieve this, I have implemented the following measures:

- Conducted accessibility audits and addressed identified issues
- Ensured the use of semantic HTML for improved screen reader compatibility
- Provided alternative text for images and multimedia content
- Ensured keyboard navigation and focus indicators are functional
- Maintained color contrast ratios for readability
- Minimized the use of auto-playing media
- Provided accessible forms and interactive elements
- Ensured the website is navigable using assistive technologies

Accessibility in my practice

My clinic is housed within an old building and is not wheelchair accessible at all times. Should you require wheelchair access or any other adaptation, please contact me in advance of your visit and I will do my very best to accommodate your needs
